

The Friends of the Cerrito Theater, the El Cerrito Historical Society and Rialto Cinemas present:

Celebrate the Centennial by facing 'The Awful Truth'

The Cerrito Theater, today Rialto Cinemas Cerrito, became a community institution when it opened during the Depression. It did so again when it re-opened due to community pressure in 2006, after being shuttered for decades.

Kick off the grand El Cerrito Centennial Weekend by enjoying the jazzy Leftover Dreams playing standards of the Great American Songbook. View vintage cars. Feel free to come in vintage clothing! Admire the Art Deco architecture. Our movie will be the hilarious screwball comedy, 'The Awful Truth,' with Cary Grant and Irene Dunne. It's from 1937 – the year the Cerrito Theater was born.

Tickets will go on sale soon and will sell out. Check theater website, www.rialtocinemas.com. Mark your calendars!

6:00 p.m. music; 7 p.m. brief history program followed by 'The Awful Truth.' Thursday, Sept. 14, Rialto Cinemas Cerrito, 10070 San Pablo Avenue.
